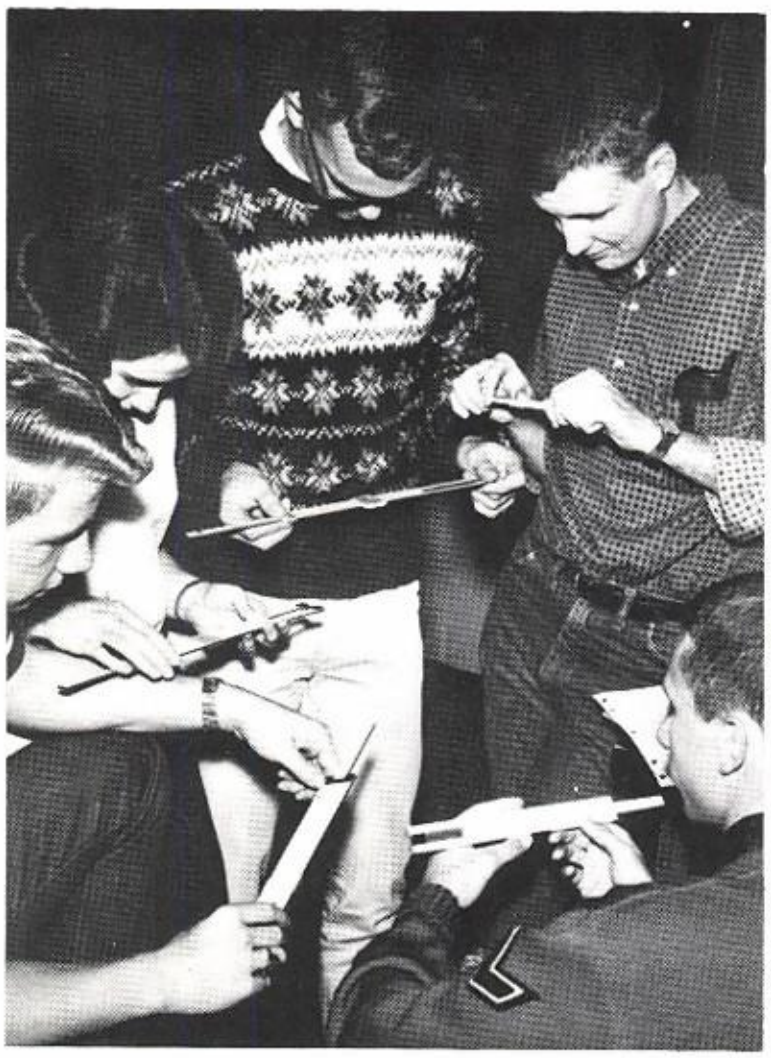
To weigh .00429 grams of a rare sample of Krypton, chemistry students Debbie Cronk and Marvin Hall use the analytical balance.

Slide rules surely beat manual computation. Just ask any physics student.



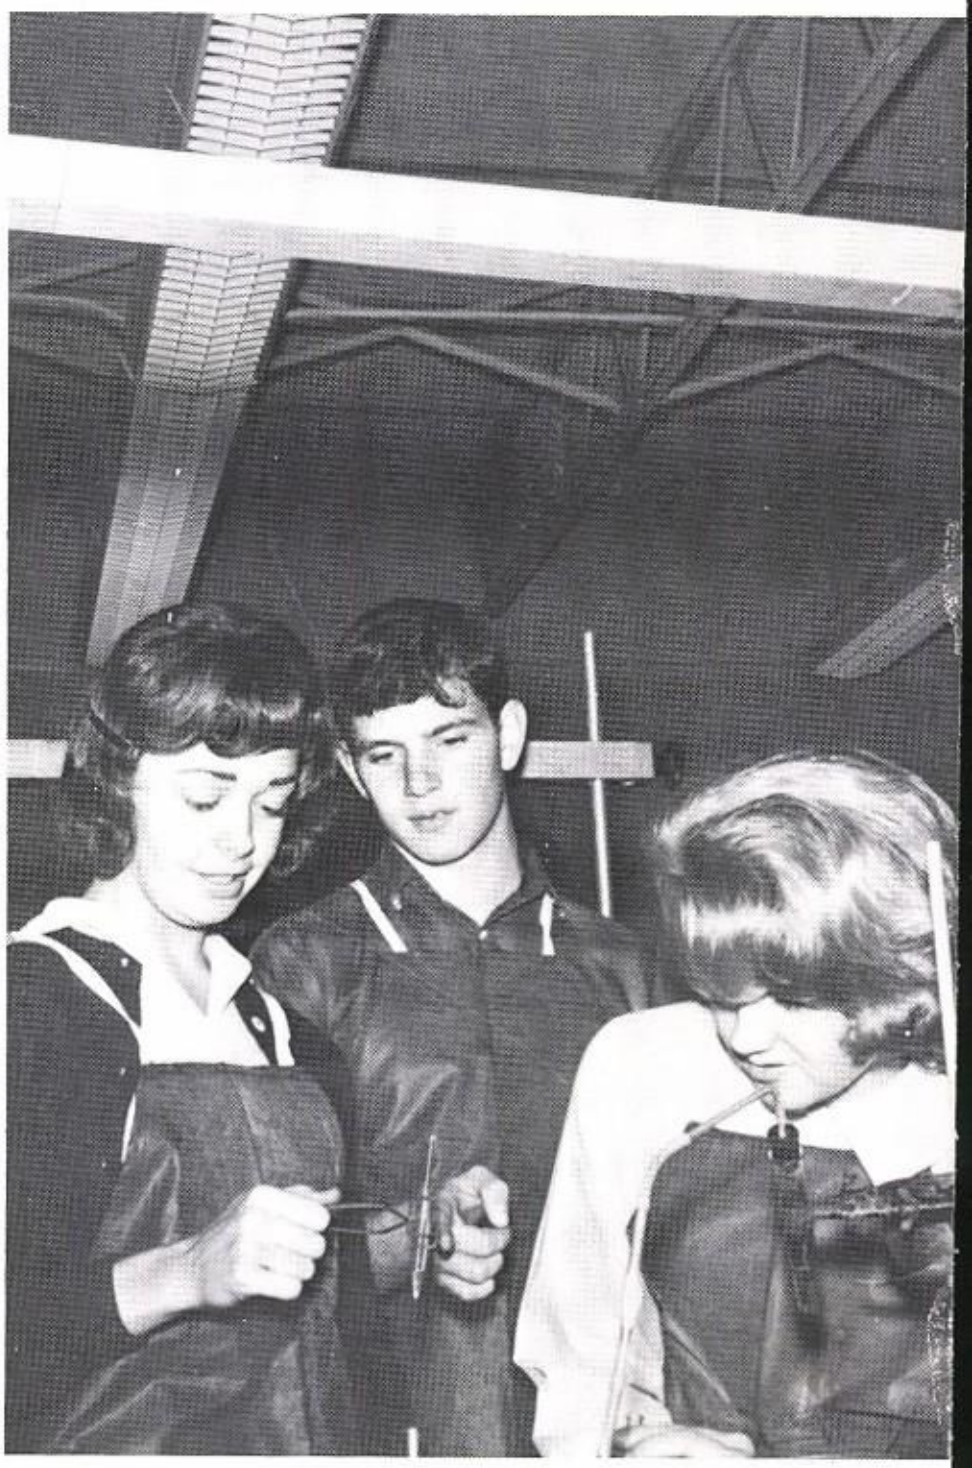
As Joan Buehler adds one drop K_2CrO_4 solution, adv chemistry students Marilyn Ratliff and John Shields wait for a yellow precipate.

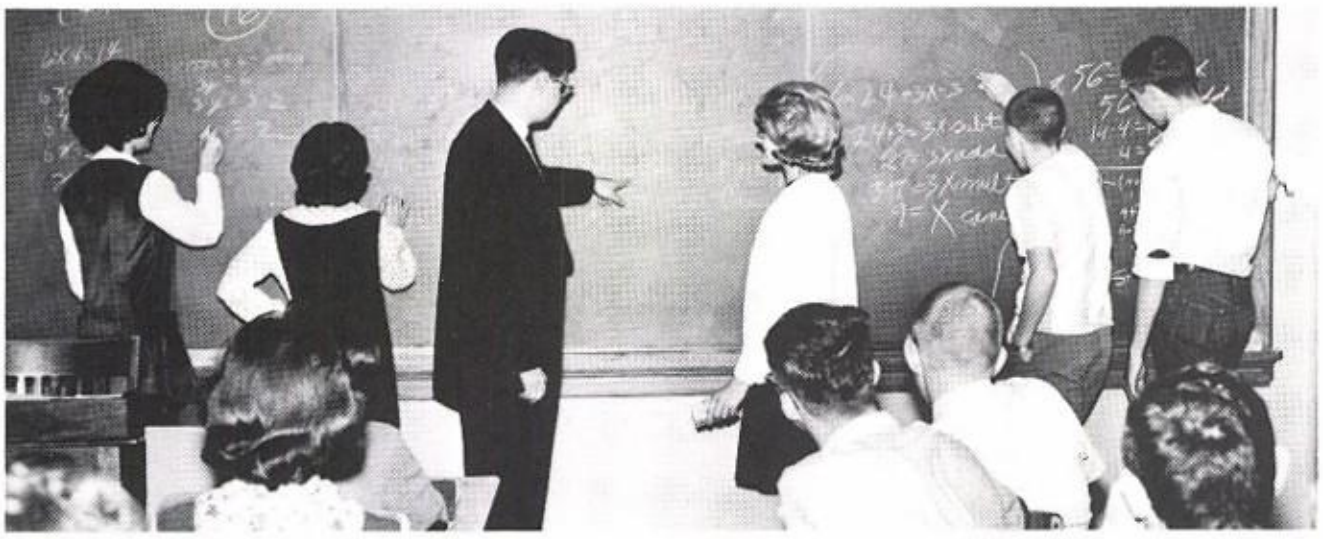
Strange odors, suspicious-looking smoke, mild explosions, and cries of agony as tests are returned emerge from Room 301 as physics, chemistry, and advanced science students explore the physical world in which they live.

Plants and protozoa become the realm of the biology student as freshmen study nature through disections and leaf collections. Also, junior high general science students devote some of their time to scientific knowledge. This sampling of many fields of science sparks interest in future study.

interest in science,

Microscopes aid in the study of minute creatures in Mr. Deiwart's biology classes.



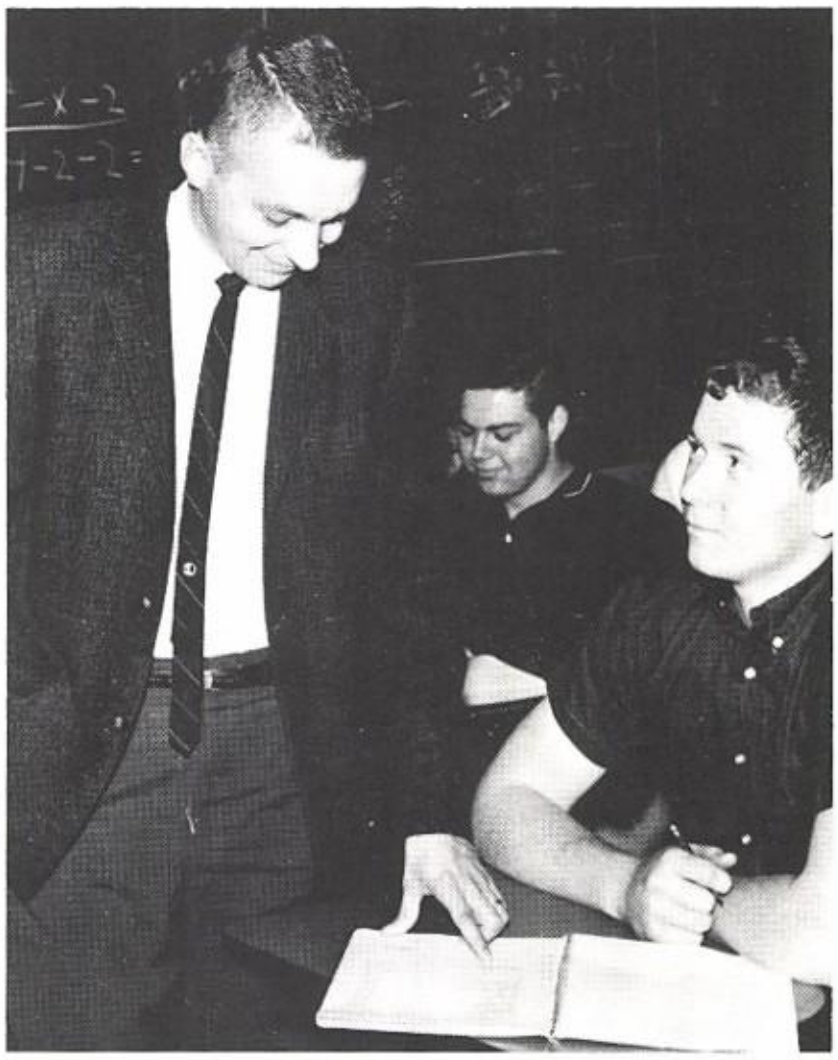


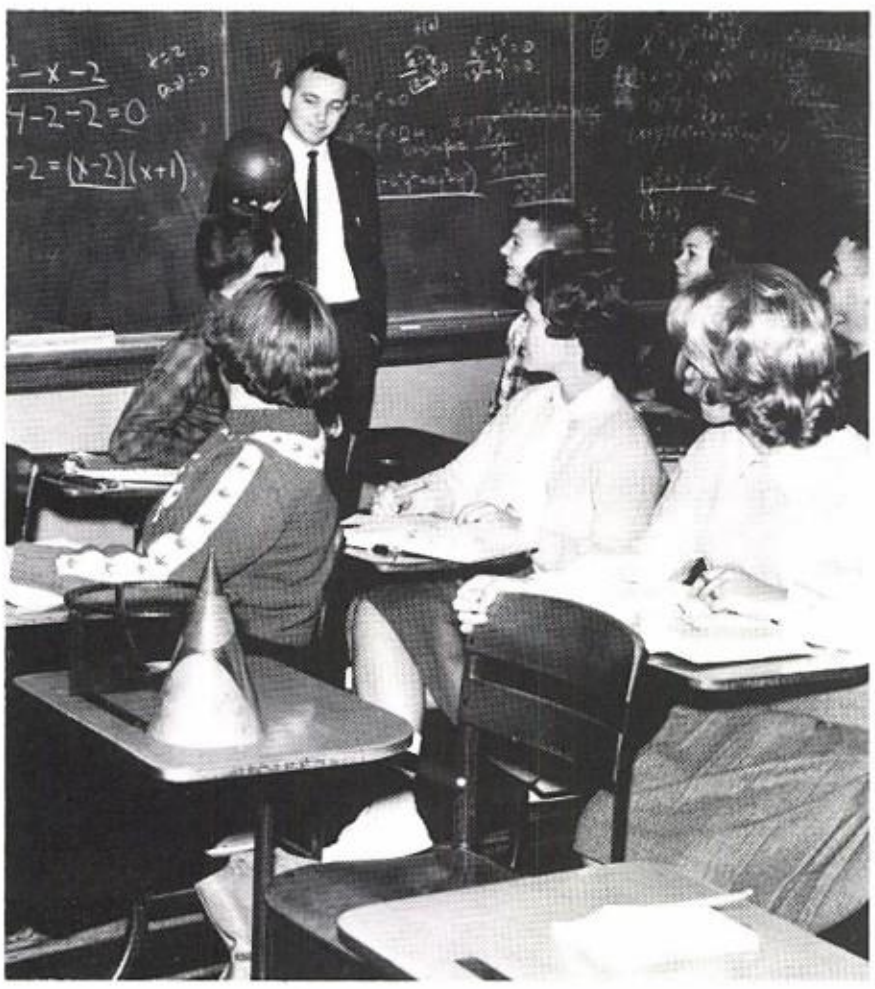
Mr. Langford explains algebra in new forms to his math students.

math booms at khs

"Solve for X" and prove ABC XYZ" become familiar problems for math students at KHS. A complete course in mathematics is offered to those interested. Junior high students practice basic principles of arithmetic to prepare them for high school math. Freshman and advanced algebra presents an understanding of the concepts of working with something other than real numbers. Points, lines, and places become tangible objects for geometry classes in the study of many and various shapes and forms. Seniors complete their study of math with a course consisting of solid geometry, trigonometry, and analytical geometry.

"Just who is this Miss Ellaneous to whom you have alloted so much money?" Mr. Howard asks Neil Hinton in business math.





Examining the properties of the sphere is one unit of study in senior math.

Kilowatt hours become math problems waiting to be solved for Mrs. Hollinger's seventh graders.

language, social studies

Sentence diagramming is really simple: All you do is put a line here, and here, and . . .

Mr. Ballenger listens with his class to a Spanish record.

The Latin form of the verb to be is fui, not phooey

Giving a presentation in speech class looks fun for Dennis Seats.

Fundamentals of grammar and the literary classics comprise the syllabus in English classes. Students of Latin and Spanish not only learn these languages, but also study the cultural background of these civilizations. Speech students learn that helping each other gain poise can be a fun part of their daily work.

motivates students

As citizens of America, where the average person plays an important part in government students at KHS want to know about their great country—its history, and its over-all position in world affairs.

The social studies department is designed to meet this need by the use of up-to-date maps and books and well informed teachers. Being an election year, 1964, a mock election gave the student body a chance to "vote" and showed the students firsthand how an election is run.

Student teacher, Donald Porter, lectures his U. S. history class on the Revolutionary War.

Seniors Tom Beavers and Paul Pugh enter into a timely discussion with Mr. Hardin about the Presidential campaign.

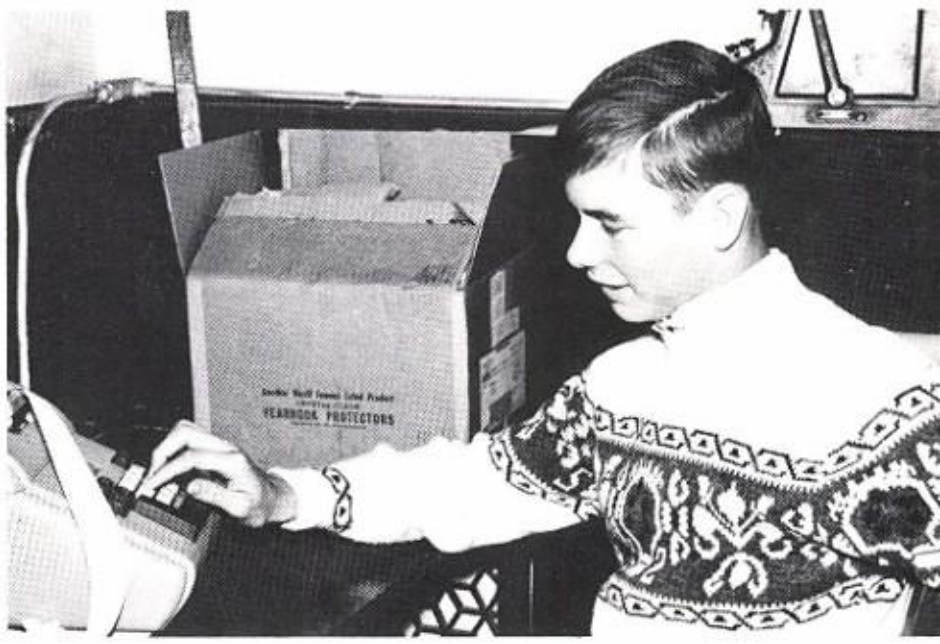
Mr. Nixon offers help to a questioning mind.

The geographical location of rivers is a highlight of Mr. Hamm's classroom presentation.

Home economics girls observe Miss Tipton's techniques of bread making.

When the buzzer sounds, Mr. Polk's first year typists must attempt to decode their creations.

vocational training



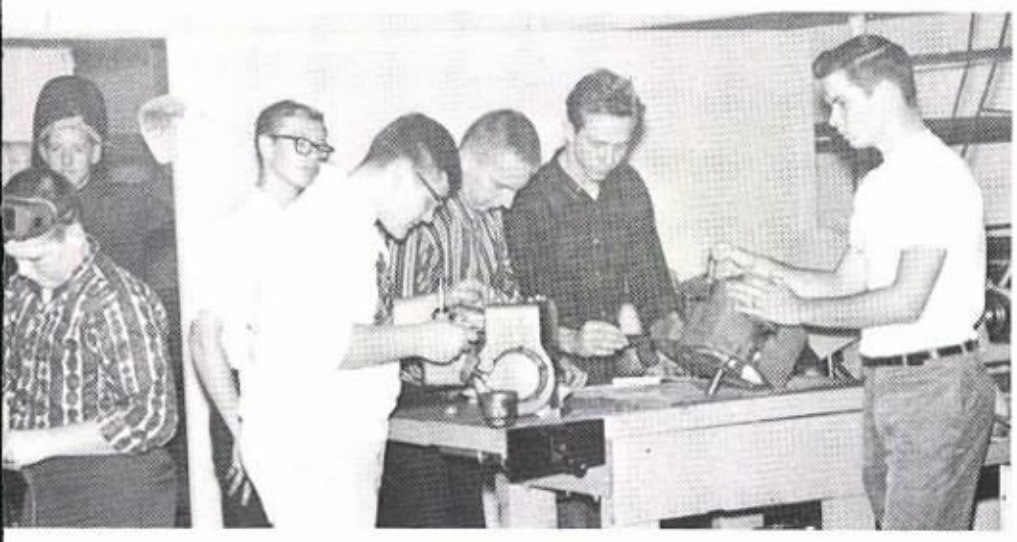
And you think you have problems, Mike Merchant just can't get his bookkeeping right!

By assemblying food scrapbooks, seventh grade home economics students better understand nutrition.

X8b'$c? becomes coherent as typing classes learn speed and accuracy. Many of these ten-fingered experts are business majors. Included in their studies are bookkeeping, shorthand, general business, and business English.

On the domestic side, girls are offered home economics courses including home management, sewing, cooking, and baking. Younger girls learn basic principles of food preparation, while older girls work on more complex dishes.

In the spring, they all participate in an annual style show modeling their garments made according to their skill and age.



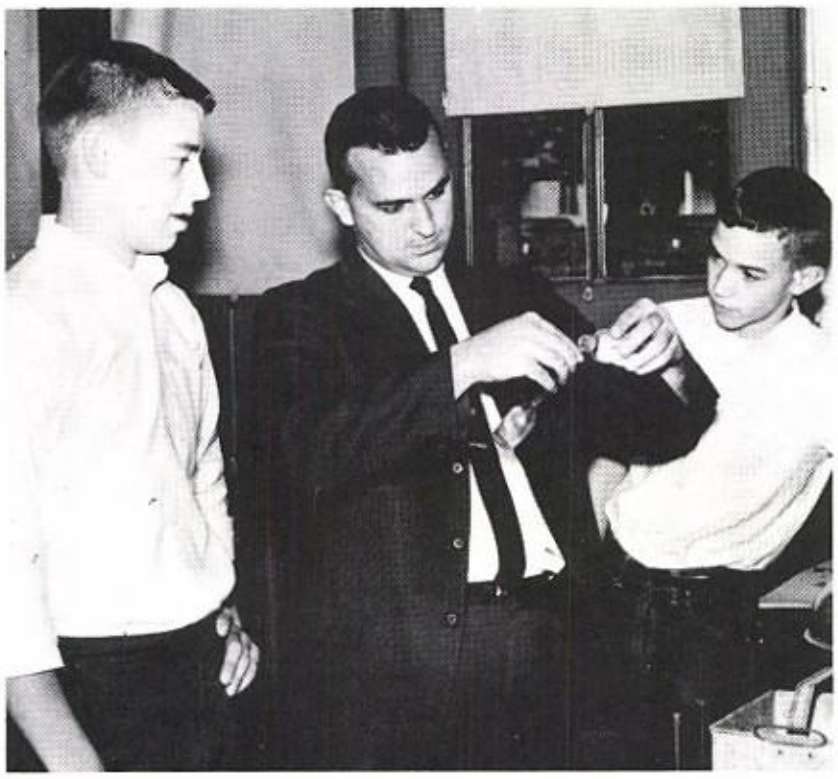
Mechanics of tomorrow practice skills in shop classes.

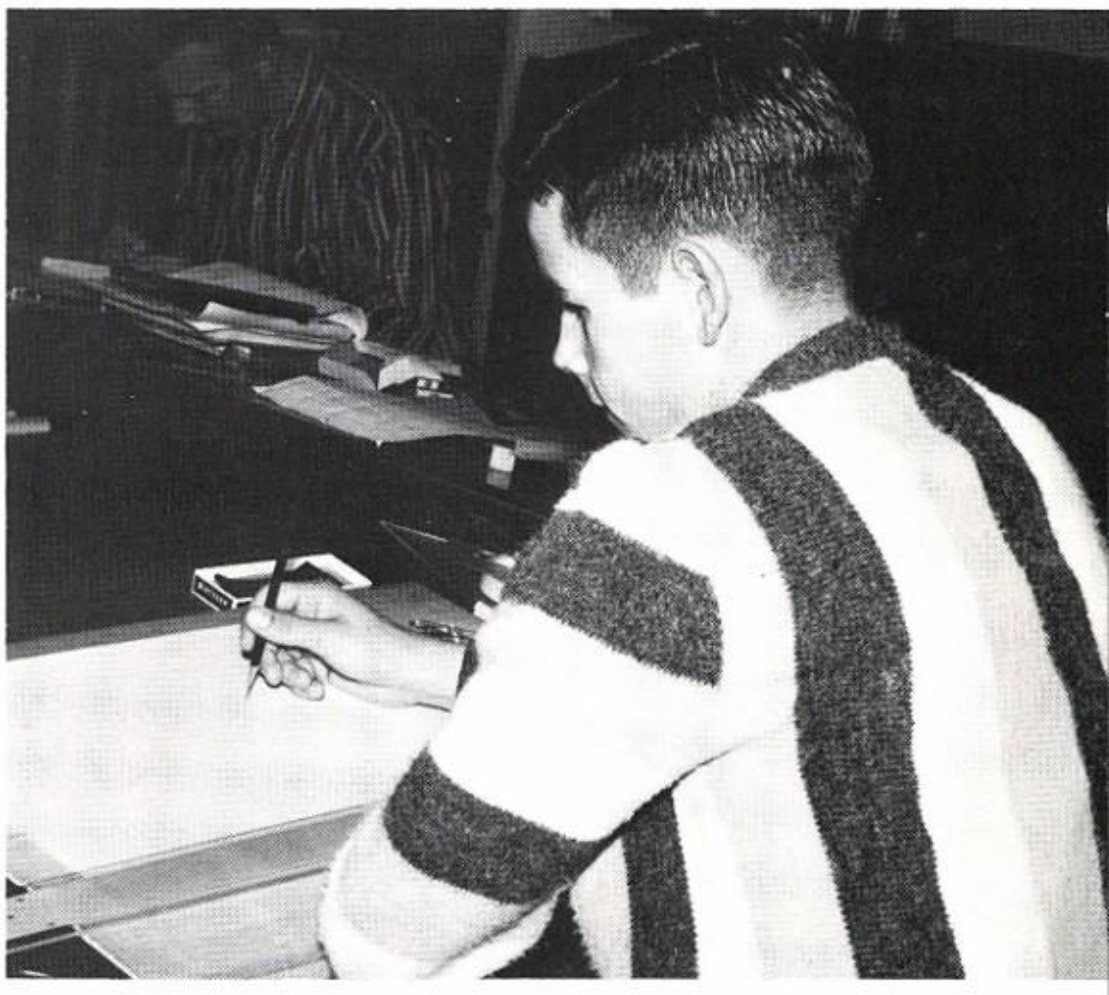
Machines, tools, and new materials combine to make something useful for boys enrolling in beginning and advanced shop classes. Younger boys work on more simple projects while the upperclassmen learn on more complex machinery. Activity tickets and programs are examples of the efforts of printing classes.

Future farmers' needs are also satisfied at KHS. Crop production, livestock, and soil are important courses to these boys. This study enables them to run a more efficient farm later in life.

supplies variety

Mr. Chattin prepares to centrifuge a milk sample for Steve Reichart and Ray Brumfiel.





Neatness and accuracy are an important part of Duane House's drafting assignment.

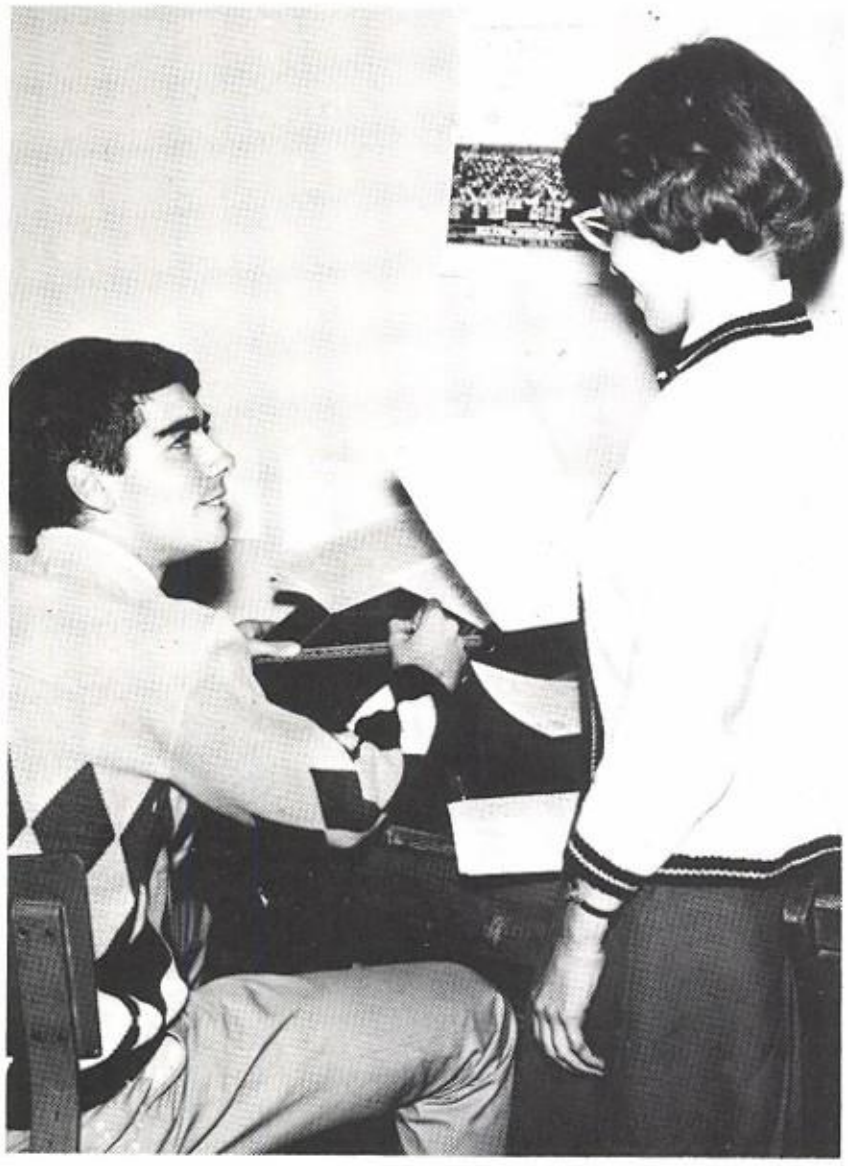
"And when set up properly, blank paper will become basketball programs," explains Mr. VanArsdel to Duane Branscum and Freddie Hicks in printing class.

assorted classes complete

Cultural training is a very important part of Knightstown's educational progrram. A music theory class has been added to the curriculum to provide basic music fundamentals.

During the first semester the Galaxy staff members learn how to publish the yearbook, but the second semester they publish the Panther Print, KHS's student newspaper.

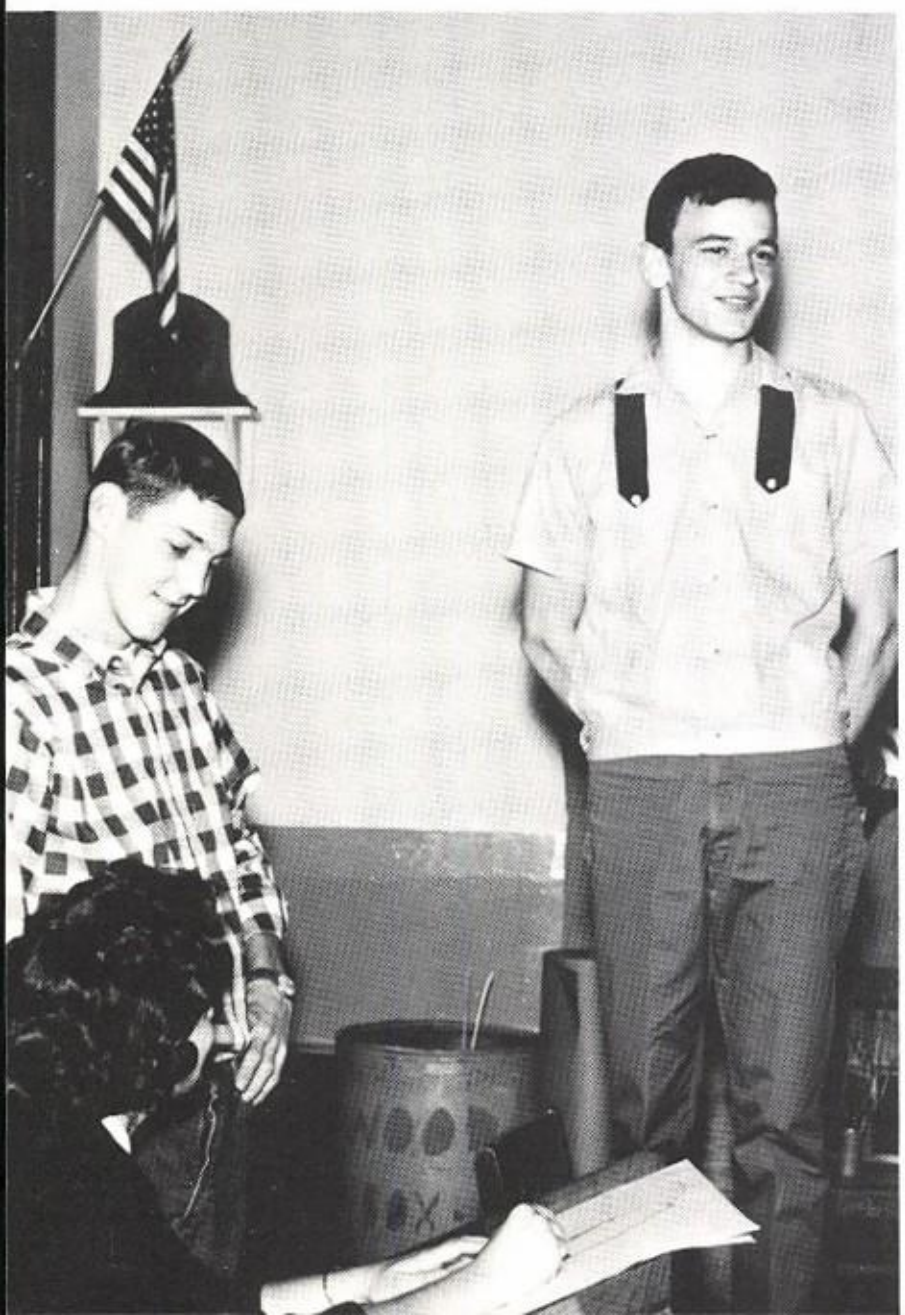
Art training is available, also, to students who have natural ability or a desire to draw.

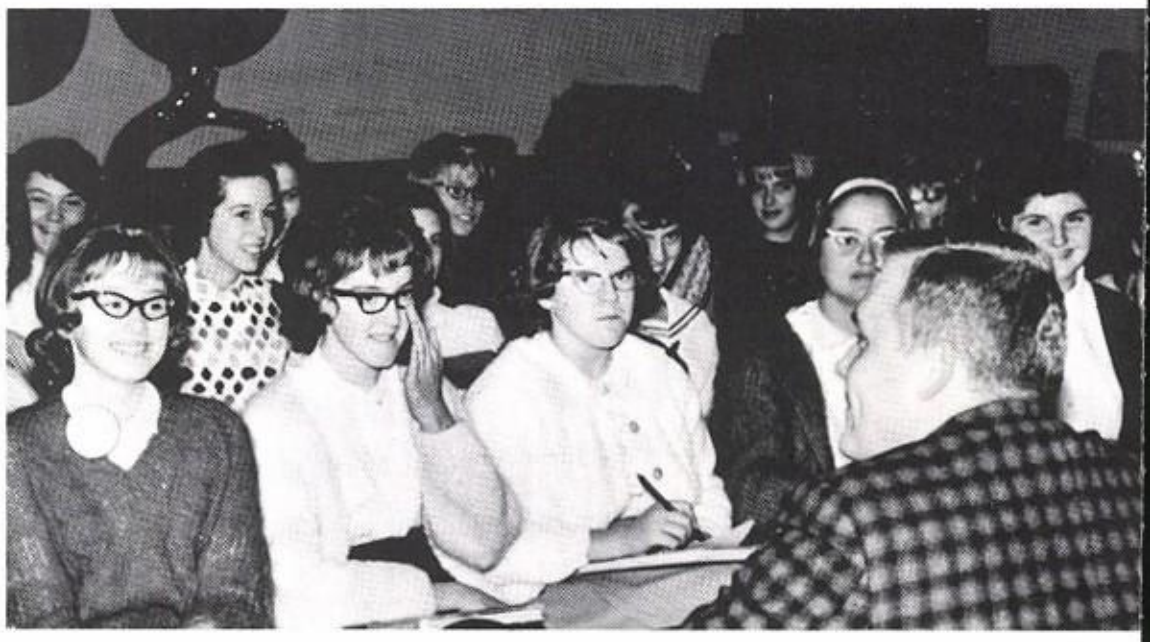


Panther Print staff members Phil Nigh and Barbara Ruckel discuss fundamentals of newspaper writing.

Newly added music theory class learns basic principles of songwriting from Mr. Peterson.

Mike Ripberger models for art student Merry Hoff while Ron Walker adds his personal comments.





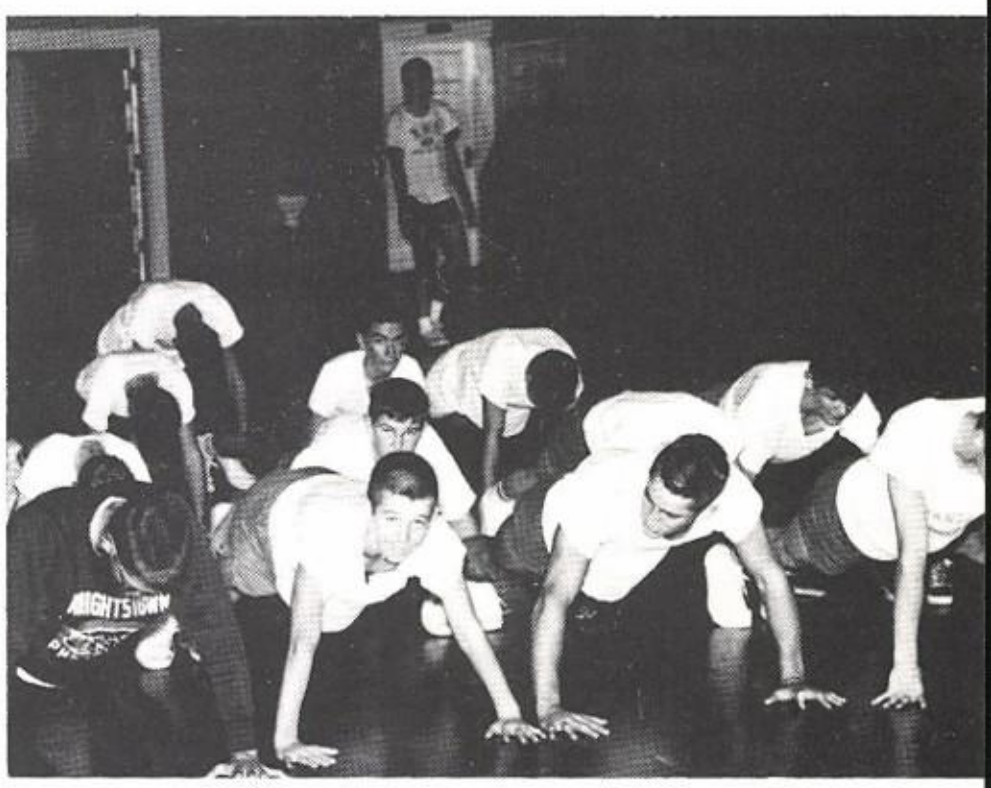
The sound of music arises from Mr. Peterson's eighth grade chorus classes.

khs curriculum

Mrs. Fort helps students read faster and with better comprehension in developmental reading.

"From the left auricle to the left ventrical," explains Miss Smith to health students as they study the heart.

Pushups in the correct form are practiced in physical education.



"Release the emergency brake and away you go." Mr. Irwin again risks his life with drivers' training student Marilyn Ratliff.

A developmental reading program is available for junior and senior high students, to help their reading and comprehension skills.

PE and Health classes stress physical fitness through classroom study and exercises.

During summer school, in drivers' training courses, safty rules and careful driving habits are stressed.

Officers elected in September for this school year are Marilyn Ratliff, publicity; Linda McShurley, vice-president, John Shields, president; Becky Mohler, secretary; and Debbie Cronk, treasurer.

Character, leadership, scholarship, and service—these are the qualities possessed by members of the National Honor Society. The Knightstown High School chapter of this organization has given distinction to outstanding students, while contributing its service to the school and community.

Keeping the bulletin board up to date, acting as hosts at open house, and taking charge of the Award Day convocation are all part of the responsibilities of the members. The annual Honor Society dance, held near St. Patrick's Day, supplies funds to take members and sponsor, Miss Tipton, to dinner in the spring.

Members are inducted into this organization in the fall and spring in ceremonies before the entire school. Students must have and maintain a "B" average to retain their membership.

On a day set aside to honor those students who have demonstrated outstanding scholastic ability, the Third Annual Scholastic Awards Day program was held on November 17. Grades were the basis for the selection of award recipients. Those students who qualified received awards according to their grade index as follows: bronze, silver, and gold medals; crests; and the highest honor—jackets. All recipients are presented with inscribed certificates.

The speaker for the occasion, Mr. Donald Odle, challenged those who received awards to prove themselves worthy of such honors and those who didn't to continue to strive for improvement.

student government and science

Serving for the 1964-65 school year were: Jeannine Oaldon, treasurer; Clyde South, president; and Patty Pride, secretary. Wanda Dishroon, vice-president, was absent.

Specific eligibility requirements, a "C" grade average, must be met for service on the Student Council. Representatives are elected in homerooms on the basis of leadership, personality, and school loyalty.

Activities including an all-school mixer and a Student Council representative exchange program with other area schools highlighted the year's events.

Under the supervision of Mr. Robert Irwin, guidance counselor and vice-principal, the council sent three students, Wanda Dishroon, Patty Pride, and Clyde South to the Student Council Workshop at Indiana University. There they learned the rudiments of school governmental systems.

Sound waves on an occiliscope attract the attention of science club members and sponsor, Mr. Wright.

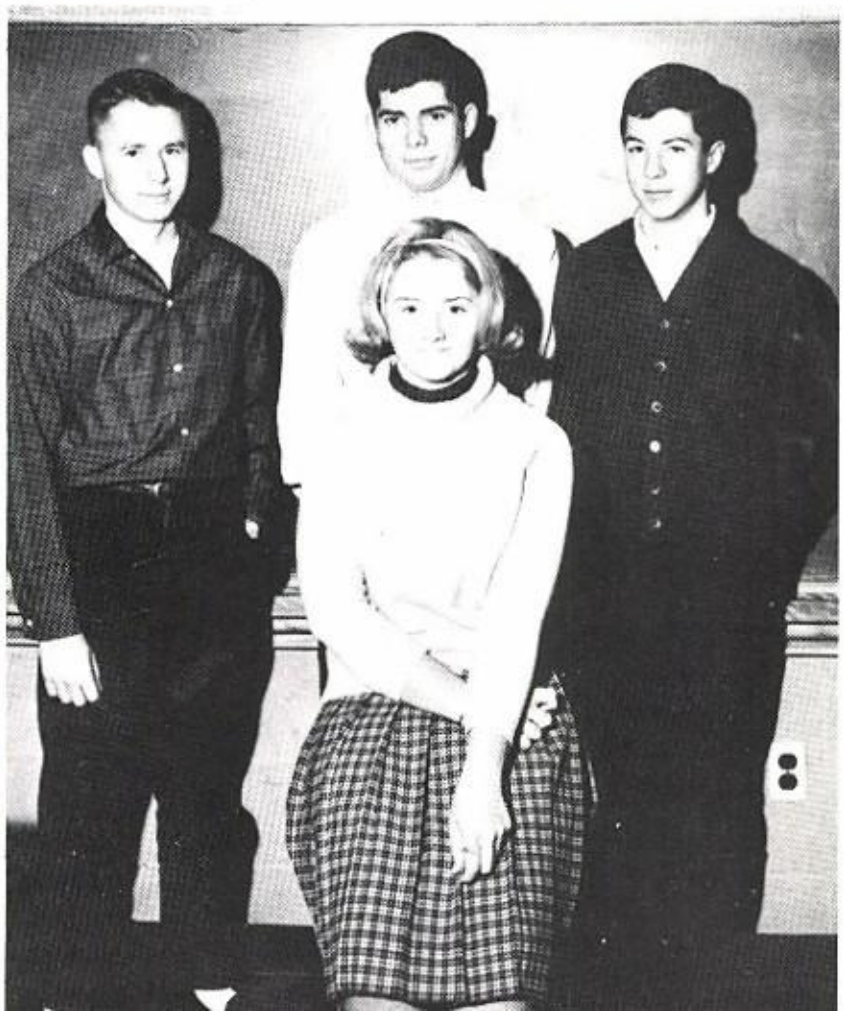
club involves many khs students

In its second year of existence, the Knightstown High School Science Club has become one of the most active groups at KHS. Through projects and discussions this club promotes interest in physical sciences. Members of the science club set up many exhibits and demonstrations during open house including a ham radio station which was in operation. The club sponsored a successful car wash in the fall and plans to send the advanced science class to Chicago to tour several museums.

The Science Club, sponsored by Mr. Wright, is a chapter of the National Science Club of America. The club is governed by officers and a board of directors, who are elected every spring. To be eligible for membership, a student must be enrolled in a physical science class or have successfully completed two years of science.

OFFICERS: Ron Brammer, president; Marilyn Ratliff, secretary; Mike Couch, vice-president; Mike Schatzlein, treasurer.



As they help busy teachers and administrators, student assistants perform a service while learning.

Answering telephones, delivering messages, typing daily absence lists, and other miscellaneous duties help Mr. Myers' office assistants practice their business training.

Student librarians not only keep the library an orderly educational room, but also learn many practical skills in the use of library facilities. Last summer Marilyn Ratliff and Patti Wilson attended a workshop for student librarian assistants at I.U., having been sent by the local sorority, Tri Kappa.

The physical education assistants help to organize gym classes by taking roll and generally assisting the instructors. Shop and lab assistants help prepare equipment for shop and science classes.

As the deadline approaches, tension mounts and out of this mass of confusion, the 1965 Galaxy emerges. Putting out yearbooks is a continuous cycle. Long before the 1964 books were delivered, work on the Galaxy had begun. During the summer, Linda McShurley and Marilyn Ratliff were sent to High School Journalism Institute at Indiana University to learn more about the fundamentals of "Yearbooking." When school began, selling advertising to finance the book was first on the schedule. Planning and taking pictures, writing copy, captions, and headlines all make a finished yearbook from a lot of jumbled ideas.

Hoping to create a much better book than last year, the whole staff works together to present to you, the students, the 1965 Galaxy.

After a semester of industrious work and various problems, the Galaxy staff happily presents the completed book.

Writing copy, typing triplicates, and making the index are a few of the tasks of Linda Fox, Barbara Ruckel, and Marcia Ohlemiller.

Carolyn Dunbar begins indexing the book, as Phil Nigh looks over a picture idea for the sports section.

specialized bands

Senior-High officers assist Mr. Meurer with the numerous functions of the band.

Captained by Chris Wiatt, the Symphonic Band is composed of 71 players. This group plays annually at the Band Boosters Blowout, a winter and a spring concert, and the ISMA Playing Contest, in which they have continually won first division ratings.

In addition to their work with the rest of the band, many band members competed in the ISMA Solo and Ensemble Contest; and several students were selected for the ISMA All Star Band at Muncie, and for the Indiana All-State Band held at Indianapolis. At the end of the year, 17 seniors were awarded band sweaters; the outstanding senior band student was presented the John Phillip Sousa Award at the Spring Concert.

Band Director Robert Meurer was elected to the executive board of the Indiana State Music Association, as class B representative.

Knightstown's Senior High Symphonic Band wins honors in contests and provides classical and contemporary music at annual functions.

Composed of 42 students, the Junior High Concert Band played three concerts and competed in the ISMA playing contest, winning a first division rating.

jr-hi musicians win first rating

Placing 18th out of 96 competing bands at the State Fair Contest last fall, the seventy-strong marching band began a new season with high-stepping spirit. After leading the Jubilee Days Parade, they next won a second place trophy at Ball State Band Day. In the ISMA state marching contest they happily brought home a first rating from all four judges. A Homecoming Parade and pre-game show at Indiana State College finalized their marching performances.

Sopranos, altos, tenors and basses all join together in the KHS concert choir. Performing for many school and community functions is the end result of their many hours of rehearsal. The High School Choir entertained audiences at the Scholastic Award Program, Kiwanis Club, the Christmas convocation, a winter and a spring concert as well as contests and other performances throughout the year.

The Madrigal Singers, a selected group of choir members and other interested students, also perform for club meetings and organizations in the surrounding area.

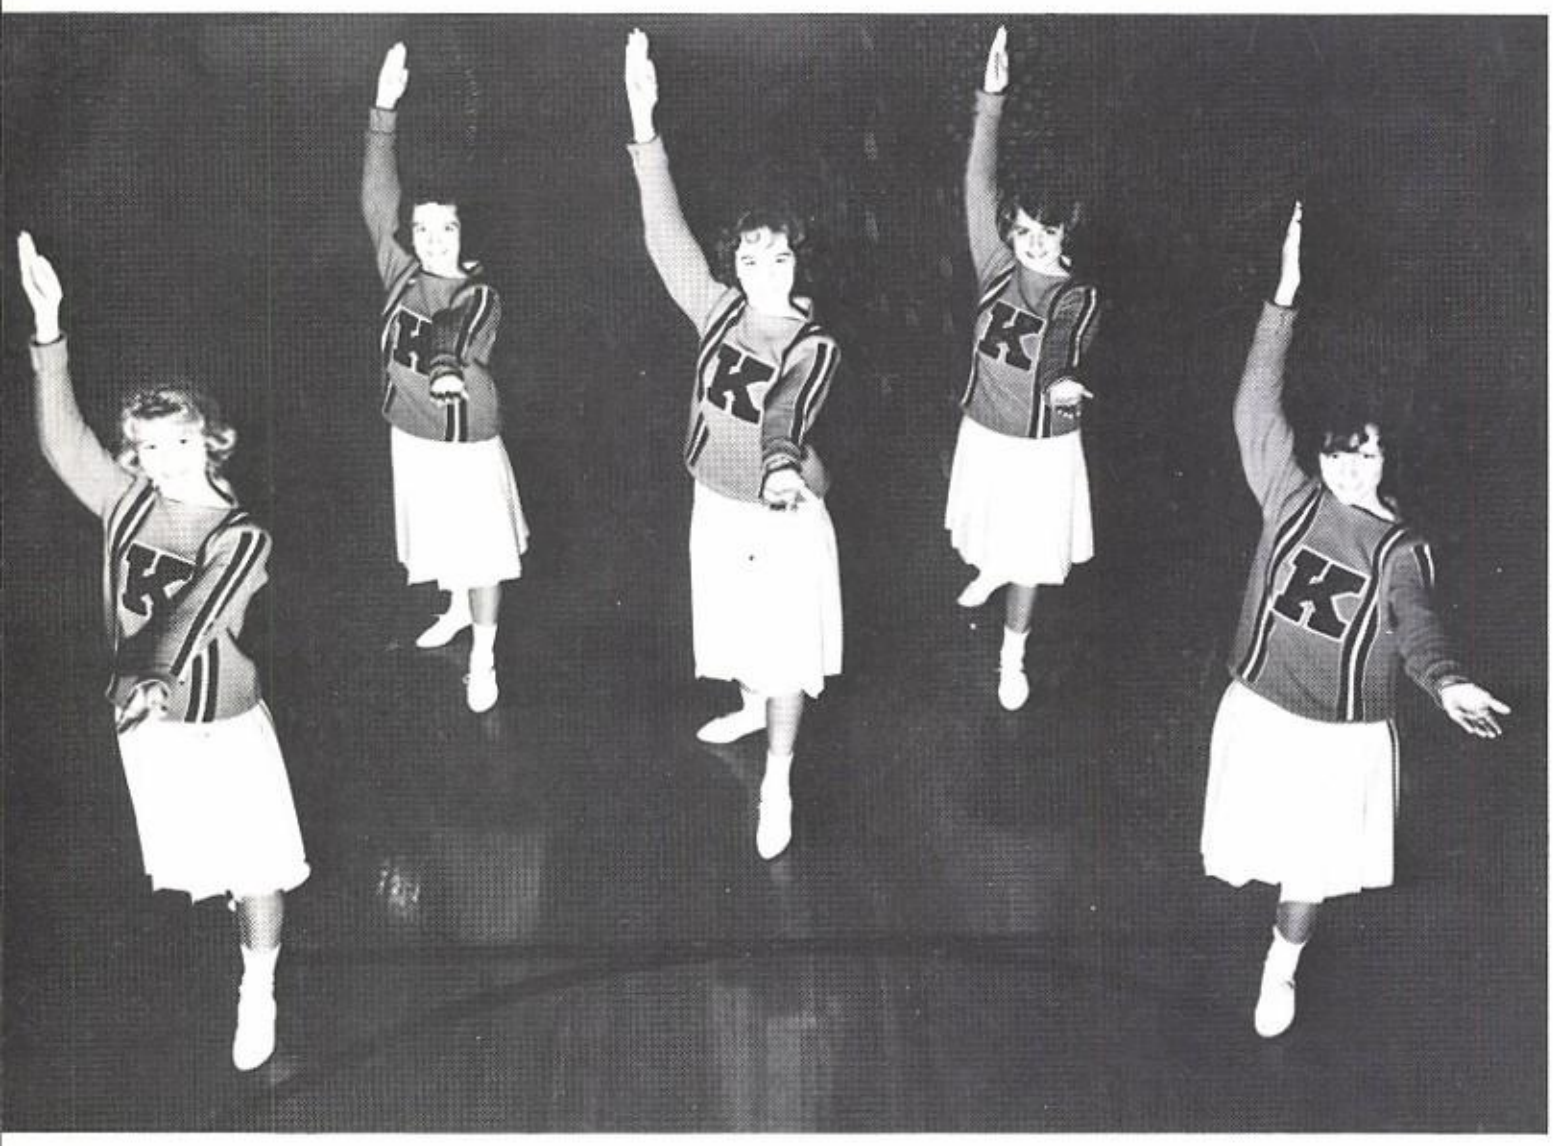
All the choirs and the Madrigal Singers perform under the very capable direction of Mr. Charles Peterson.

HIGH SCHOOL CHOIR OFFICERS: Terry Hoff, secretary; Stephanie Post, Librarian; Rheta Cooney, vice president; Earla Leonard, Librarian; Ruth Cassiday, president.

Madrigal Singers adeptly perform their musical talents at school programs and various occasions.

Because Mr. Peterson has been teaching music fundamentals to the Eighth Grade (above) and Seventh Grade (below) Chorus, they now not only sing well but also understand music theory.

organized panther enthusiasts



Although the cheerblock yell "Teamwork, t e a m-work" applies to the Panthers, it also describes the cheerblock itself. With the cheerleaders, the KHS cheerblock works hard to keep school spirit thriving and enthusiasm running high. Whether the game is a victory or a loss, by a large or small margin, one is sure to hear this peppy organization backing the Panthers from start to finish. The red and white cheerblock jackets are a colorful sight; and the energetic cheerleaders, an inspiration to the team.

golf a swinging affair

One of Knightstown High's newer minor sports is golf. An enthusiastic team was led by Dave Brooks No. 1 man, and Leroy Walker No. 2 man. Steve Lowe, No. 5 man, was the leading scorer for the Panther squad that placed third in the conference. With the loss of only the No. 1 and 5 men, the panthers should rank high in this conference race.

"Fore!" yells Ron Brammer as he drives the ball over the green into the gallery.

Coach Dick VanArsdale explains fundamentals to members of the backfield.

new sport expands athletic program

Initiating its newest sport, football, Knightstown defeated two Tri-Eastern Conference foes in reserve competition, after falling to a rugged eleven at Rushville. Eddie Goff led the team in yards gained as Knightstown had 481 net yards gained.

In the first game at the Athletic Field, Larry Meece, Steve Egan, and Eddie Goff helped dominate the game and keep Centerville scoreless.

Spirit shown this year by the new football team may make a full varsity schedule an interesting adventure next year. Good attendance at both home and away games showed a marked interest by the community.

Charles Brown demonstrates proper blocking technique.

Seniors at last! Having survived 1980 days of school, 96 students entered their senior at KHS as the largest graduating class in history. Sweating through required courses and those last final exams received increased attention as June 2 approached.

With so much emphasis on the "average" everything in people's lives today, a survey was taken to determine what the "average" senior of KHS was really like. Adding machines and slide rules transformed numerical data into a tangible picture of the composite senior. On the following pages, John and Mary Doe of the class of '65 reveal their identities.

Vice-president Jerry Swartz, treasurer Glenna Starbuck, and secretary Rheta Cooney start planning in the fall for a successful year of activities.

largest graduating class set

Attention boys! Are you a 5'9", 150.9 pound senior? If not, then you, my friend, are not average. This brown-eyed brown-haired specimen of 17.8 years has, in his brief time at KHS, acquired a strange dislike for English and teachers, while shop classes and girls seem to hold his interest.

John Doe of the class of '65 earns $19.24 a week and spends $4.98 of his earnings keeping his '57 Chevy running at a top speed of 106.7 mph.

In spite of their appearing preoccupation with the fair sex, 11.6% of the male population seem to be strangly anti-female in their social habits.

PSSSsss . . . A can of hair spray fallen into the clutches of a senior girl has breathed its last and, after 21.4 days of life, has ceased to exist. A week in the life of this 5'7", 129.5 pound girl consists of 14.8 hours of TV, practicing the great American sport of drive-in circling at least 18.9 times and a few spare moments in thoughts of "that gorgeous Paul McCartney." Tuesday and Thursday nights have a special meaning for 62.9% of these teenagers, for then, Allison and the Peyton Placers unveil their problems to the world.

The teenage girl's past experience with the opposite sex has left her with a strong preference for long-haired boys from neighboring villages.

JUNIOR OFFICERS: Bob Garner, president; Marsha Harvey, treasurer; Carole Kelly, secretary; Barbara Nelson, vice-president.

In either the spring or fall, each class elects four members to supervise its duties and its annual projects. Each class has its own special money making activity—freshmen, selling candy; sophomores, smorgasbord; juniors, magazine sales, concessions at ball games, sponsoring dances, and planning for the night of all nights, the Junior-Senior Prom.

The individual class elects its officers in the way of its own choice such as voting by machine, balloting, or group session voting.

These officers have a large responsibility to themselves and their class. All the heavy pressures are laid upon their shoulders, and the members of the class rely upon them entirely to help formulate their ideas and to keep the class together in all their activities.

SOPHOMORE OFFICERS: Jack Ottinger, president; Earla Leonard, treasurer; Peggy Pidgeon, secretary; Tom Mills, vice-president.

Though they come from a host of different schools and family backgrounds, the members of the faculty have a common purpose—to present knowledge to the students in such a manner that it is interesting as well as fun. In addition to their classroom duties, teachers participate in a variety of extra-curricular activities as chaperones, sponsors, and advisers. Thus, in addition to the regular teacher-student relationship, students at KHS see members of the faculty as friends with whom they have worked closely on various projects.

KNIGHTSTOWN

The end . . . the happy year of 1964-65 is ended . . . a year of hopes, dreams, and ambitions . . . a year of fun, activities, and togetherness . . . a year of preparation for the future . . . another year is on our doorstep . . . September another senior class begins the cycle . . . for us seniors a new world unfolds . . .

Thank you—Bob, Marilyn, Patty, Susan; the entire staff; Mrs. Ward, our adviser; Joe Cooney, our faithful photographer; Phil Byers, our yearbook representative; and our advertisers—your undying efforts meant so much as we finished and finally mailed the last shipment to produce this Galaxy 1965.
